

Dear expectant parent(s),

Words feel inadequate to truly convey the love and support we have for you. We don't know what led you to consider this hard but incredibly courageous decision to consider adoption for your baby. What we do know, without a doubt, there is a sovereign and powerful God who loves you deeply and unconditionally. As you weigh the options of parenting or entrusting your child to an adoptive family, we are praying for you. It would be an honor for us to become your child's adoptive parents, and we hope this letter is a first step in getting to know us.

Austin

Austin was born and raised in Southwestern Montana. From a young age, he loved learning all things technical and mechanical. This naturally developed into a lifelong love to learn how things work and into a few small businesses. Austin has worked for our church for 8 years on the IT side of things. When not working on a project, Austin loves to spend time with Julia and our cats, go on walks/bike rides, and play board or video games with friends.

Julia

Julia was born in Colorado, but grew up around the states as her dad's job changed. She loves learning about other cultures and seeing new places. Right now, she works as the billing manager for a local family practice clinic. In her free time, Julia loves to help Austin with projects, garden, work on her many craft projects, and snuggle with our kitties.

Our Journey

In 2018, we started dating after meeting at the Bible college where Julia was a student and Austin was on staff as the IT director. We got married in 2020, and shortly after we got married, we began to try and start a family. After years of trying and struggling, it began to look like having biological children may not be an option for us. Through the grief of infertility, we realized that we both have a deep desire to be parents. We talked openly about adoption since before we were married, so adoption was a very natural response to our struggles.

Our story looks different than what we thought it would at the beginning of our journey, but we are incredibly thankful for everything that has led us here! We praise God for the opportunity and privilege to raise a child(ren) that He has chosen to grow with us as a family. We are trusting the Lord in this process, as we desire to fill our home with children, that we might love and care for them.

We are so very grateful for your courageous choice to give your little one life. Thank you for also taking the time to look at our profile. We understand this must be an intensely emotional time, and we are praying for you. We are hopeful for the chance to meet you and walk alongside you in your adoption journey.

With much love,
Austin and Julia
